BEDE'S CYCLE WAY

Cycle Bede's Way

Cycle Bede's Way and enjoy a great day out following the route of seventh century pilgrims.

Bede's Cycle Way has been devised to link the Twin Anglo-Saxon monastery of St Peter's in Wearmouth and St Paul's in Jarrow, now a candidate World Heritage Site.

Follow a safe and enjoyable route through the Great North Forest, covering 13 miles of rich landscape, delightful seascape, rolling hills and meandering streams, combining both on and off road cycling.

This leaflet can be used to start the ride at either St Peter's or St Paul's churches and features an easy to use map of Bede's Cycle Way. Along the ride follow the Bede's Way, Cycle Way and NCN 14 signs.

Useful contacts and further information have also been included to help you discover other attractions along the way.

HISTORY

Benedict Biscop, a Northumbrian noble, founded the monastery of St Peter in 674 and its twin house of St Paul was begun eight years later. The two sites were regarded as one; Bede described them as 'one monastery in two places' and tells us that St Paul's was 'built on the understanding that the two houses should be bound together by the one spirit of peace and harmony'.

Monks would have travelled between the sites on foot or by boat, possibly following parts of this route between St Paul's along the River Don to St Peter's on the River Wear.

Bede, (673 -735) was educated in the monastery from the age of seven. His writing, particularly The Lives of the Abbots of Wearmouth and Jarrow and The Ecclesiastical History of the English People give a unique insight into life in the monastery of Wearmouth-Jarrow in the late 7th and early 8th centuries.

Bede was the most important European scholar of his age. He is most famous now as the founder of medieval historical writing and first historian of the English, but also made lasting influential contributions in poetry, astronomy, mathematics and the reckoning of time.

Other productions of the community during Bede's lifetime included the Codex Amiatinus, a complete Bible in a single volume, and a landmark in the development of European art.

Wearmouth's foundation was the fulfilment of Benedict Biscop's ideal to build in the 'Roman manner'. His desire to establish a perfect type of religious community was assisted by masons and glaziers from the Frankish lands, and the bringing of relics, books, paintings, teachers and ideas from Rome.

At both sites buildings of the late 7th century survive, both standing and excavated, together with stone sculptures and a wide range of excavated material that includes a unique collection of coloured glass. The buildings of the twin monastery were amongst the first stone buildings in Anglo-Saxon Northumbria, and St Paul's contains the oldest church dedication stone in England.

This combination of rare medieval standing fabric with one of the most influential figures of contemporary culture makes the twin monastery of Wearmouth - Jarrow a site of world importance.
